Alabama Baptist Church

"Blessed is the man that walketh in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. I Psalm 1

The regular preaching service was held at the Alabama Baptist Church Sept.2, and also Homecoming Day. Rev. Curtis Elliott, pastor, was in charge of the service. Visiting ministers were Rev. Flood, Rev. Haskins and Rev. Bedford. A very large crowd attended Homecoming. Afternoon sermon was by Rev. Robert Haskins of New Jeersey. Everyone seemed to enjoy the day.

Alabama Baptist Church wishes to thank everyone for donated food toward the dinner.

The Wade Family and friends from Washington, D.C. were home and all the churches around were represented by someone. We want to thank you.

The revival begins on last Monday. Our pastor conducted the revival. A nice crowd attended every night and the revival was a great success.

The church, pastor and members thank everyone for coming out.

On Saturday Mr. Phillip Goode and Miss Annie Haskins were married at 2 at the White Oak Grove Church. Rev. Curtis L. Elliott performed the ceremonies and Rev. Wyatt Venable gave the special prayer for the groom and bride. A large crowd attended the service and a lot of beautiful gifts were given.

Our special prayers go out to the sick everywhere and special Mrs. Magnolia Franklin.

NEWS Of Education

A nationwide, quarter million dollar scholarship program for high school seniors graduating with the class of 1980 is being offered, for the fourth consecutive year, this fall by The National Association of Secondary School Principals.

High school seniors should contact their principals for details and applications for the Century III Leaders Program. Applications must be submitted by October 10.

Members of the Class of 1980 are encouraged to enter the annual Century III Leaders Program, which offers 102 students the opportunity to participate in an expense paid, three day symposium at historic Williamsburg, Virginia in March.

The state winners each receive a $1500 scholarship grant. The grand national winner, announced in Williamsburg, receives an additional $10,000 scholarship. Two other seniors in each state receive $500 scholarships.

Local winners will be selected on the basis of a knowledge of current events and an application that reflects their leadership activities. They then write the projection which outlines what they see as one of America's future challenges and how it should be met. This projection is used to help select the state winners.

The 102 state winners invited to participate in the Williamsburg experience will have demonstrated a grasp of current affairs in social, governmental or international areas.

Eye Bank Workshop For Lions Scheduled

Members of local and area Lions Clubs have been invited to attend an Old Dominion Eye Bank Workshop on Sunday, September 16, 1979 at the Richmond Hyatt House, 6600 West Broad Street, Richmond, Virginia.

The work session will open at 10:00 a.m. with a welcoming address by Doctor Edward C. Meyer, a former district governor, Lions of Virginia, and will close at 2:30p.m. according to Mr. R. Kenneth Hudgins, executive director of the Eye Bank.

Hudgins said the agenda includes: Functioning of the Eye Bank; Post Mortem Enucleation; Eye Bank Funding; Morticians Services to the Eye Bank and Virginia Communities; Legal Aspects of Eye Banking; Corneal Transplants; Remarks by a recent Transplant Recipient.

Doctor Walter Mayer, surgical director of the Eye Bank says the workshop is an excellent means by which the medical profession can inform Lions of the vital part they play in making it possible for many individuals without vision to receive sight.

During the past year, he pointed out, eye surgeons performed 141 sight-restoring grafts using corneal tissue obtained through the Lions of Virginia donor solicitation program and processed through the facilities of the Old Dominion Eye Bank.

3965 pledge cards were collected by Lions within the past twelve months and placed on file with the Eye Bank, Executive Director Hudgins said, to await the time when the pledge would eventually be fulfilled making it possible for someone without vision to receive the "gift of sight," a never-ending mission of the Lions of Virginia and the Old Dominion Eye Bank.

Hyperactive Children

How does a parent decide whether a child is hyperactive? And if he is, what can be done about it?

It is a subject on which even the experts do not agree but some useful data is emerging from their study of the problem. They are coming to feel that inability to concentrate is a more accurate sign than a high level of physical energy. The latter may be produced by a very active, excited mind which is perfectly normal.

By contrast, the truly hyperactive child acts impulsively and without "focus", accomplishing little. Children who fidget in school may have a language problem rather than a neurological one.

Pediatricians are becoming more knowledgeable about various kinds of learning disability. If your child is having difficulty in concentrating, an evaluation and diagnosis by your pediatrician should be the first step. He may recommend a further evaluation by a team of psychiatric, neurological and learning disability specialists such as is available in large medical centers. On the other hand, a significant number of children have been helped by the removal of additives, especially artificial coloring and flavors, from their food. (See "The Feingold Association" next week).

Melvin Levine, M.D.*, writing in Redbook (October, 1976) warns against the indiscriminate use of drugs to quiet hyperactive children. He recommends careful evaluation first and only short-term drug use except in the most severe cases.

Some of the problems associated with medication include the possibility of masking the underlying cause and adverse effects on appetite, sleep and behavior. Because of the possibility that they may retard growth, drugs are usually discontinued at adolescence.

Dr. Levine believes that education is the most important part of the treatment for hyperactive children and urges parents to join forces in developing community awareness of the importance of providing special education classes in the public school system.

*Dr. Levine is assistant professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School and director of the Medical Outpatient Department at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.
